There are better books out thereBy Jennifer CallahanI was expecting this to have more narrative but it was just a 1,000 ideas like "the mistrust of wondering why that guy just smiled at you". Not what I expected.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Enriquezrelly good

A charming, thought-provoking, hand-lettered book for fans of The Book of Awesome and Wreck This JournalThey amaze us and hurt us, bring us to tears and make us laugh, delight us and keep us up at night: feelings that we know only too well, but which have eluded the English lexicon for so long. In 1,000 Feelings for Which There Are No Names, author Mario Giordano catalogs those familiar emotions. Perfect for cocktail parties, quiet reflection, daily inspiration, or travel entertainment, this delightful compendium is broken up into helpful sections that will fit your every mood, such as “Afternoon Feelings,” “Nerd Feelings,” “Heaven-help-me Feelings,” or the somewhat more nebulous “Tangerine Feelings.” Or try opening a page at random to help kiss writer’s block goodbye. Don’t forget to add your own feelings in the back of the book (before they get away!) and share with others.

About the Author Mario Giordano is one of Germany’s bestselling thriller and screenplay writers. 1,000 Feelings for Which There Are No Names was born out of an intense bout of writer’s block.
