Radford Architectural Co. : 100 Turn-of-the-Century House Plans (Dover Architecture) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised 100 Turn-of-the-Century House Plans (Dover Architecture):

Good readBy Julia PerrineI wish the pictures of the house plans were clearer and bigger. The words are hard to read on the plans. The information in the book about the plans and architects is very interesting.16 of 19 people found the following review helpful. Before there were kit homes, there were plan books...By Rosemary ThorntonThis is a reprint of Radford's 1909 Plan Book and (may I one day be forgiven for saying this, but), some of these houses were ugly. I mean really and truly UGLY.But some of them weren't so bad. If you were a wanna-be homeowner (almost) 100 years ago, you'd peruse the pages and pick out a house that suited your needs and your pocketbook. Then you'd send in a few bucks (typically $5 or so) and receive a full set of blueprints that you'd use to build your dream house. The quality of this reprint is good and this is a fun read, if for no other reason than to get an idea of the evolution of American architecture. Rose author, The Houses That Sears Built co-author, California's Kit Homes

Affordable reprint of rare 1909 catalog, featuring authentic illustrations and floor plans for homes ranging from simple three-room bungalows to elaborate 10- and 12-room structures with sitting rooms, libraries, parlors, and wraparound porches. An excellent reference for home restorers, preservationists, and students of American architectural history. A delight for Americana fans and nostalgia lovers.
