Dare Strickland : Ada (Images of America) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Ada (Images of America):

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Just what I ordered. By Nashoba Losa This book was just what I ordered. It arrived on time and was in good condition. I am totally satisfied with the ordering and delivery process and recommend the book to anyone wanting additional factual data about Ada, Oklahoma.

Ada, named after the eldest daughter of Jeff Reed, a founder of the town, is located in the east central part of Oklahoma. It is the county seat of Pontotoc County and was called the worst town for criminal activity in the Indian Territory for the lack of justice. The west end block of Main Street was called the "Bucket of Blood" and harbored many murderers and outlaws until, in 1909, the hanging of four men in a stable advised all who would hide in Ada to leave or suffer the same fate. The murder of former U.S. marshal Gus Bobbitt was the catalyst for this desperate action. The hanging is one of the most talked about tales of the early West. Growing from the oil, cotton, and cement industries, Ada is known as the city of clear spring water. The Chickasaw Nation has its headquarters in Ada and has been a fount of industry and beauty in the town.

About the AuthorDare Strickland is retired. Active in the arts in Ada and known for her writings, she has won awards in this arena. She is the mother of three children, grandmother of seven, and boasts of one great-grandchild.
