William G. Andrews : Around Brockport (Images of America) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Around Brockport (Images of America):

CorbinI purchased this book because it contains information about my great-great grandfather, George Flint Barnett, and his farm implements factory in Brockport right on the Erie Canal. In addition to learning more about my ancestor and his work, I am able to see photos of him and his business that help bring the story to life. I also learned a great deal about Brockport and Monroe County from this book, leading me to put both on my bucket list for a visit in the not too distant future.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Nancy A.Great photos and information. I refer to it time and again!

The first settlers came to the Brockport area soon after 1800. Located some twenty miles west of Rochester, the towns of Sweden and Clarkson, the village of Brockport, and a college were organized between 1814 and 1835. The Erie Canal, farm implement manufacturing, and higher education fostered their growth and prosperity in the mid-1800s. At Brockport, the United States became a continental nation, the Industrial Revolution came to agriculture, and popular literature came to American women. Today, Brockport is a remarkably well-preserved Victorian village on a revitalized Erie Canal, Clarkson and Sweden are havens for farming and commuting, and the college is an 8,500-student unit of the State University of New York. Around Brockport presents more than two hundred thirty images from private and public collections, many from glass negatives. They depict such aspects of the area's history as farm life in early Sweden, stately homes at Clarkson Corners, industrial plants in Brockport, and student activities at the normal school.

About the Author William G. Andrews is the historian emeritus for the village of Brockport and political science professor emeritus at the State University of New York at Brockport. He is the author of Around Brockport in the Images of America series and has published numerous books and articles in the field of political science. He devotes himself to historic preservation and other civic affairs, such as the revitalization of the Erie Canal.
