

[Read now] Art in America 1945-1970: Writings from the Age of Abstract Expressionism, Pop A: (Library of America #259)

Art in America 1945-1970: Writings from the Age of Abstract Expressionism, Pop A: (Library of America #259)

Various

audiobook / *ebooks / Download PDF / ePub / DOC

 Download

 Read Online

#295218 in eBooks 2014-10-09 2014-10-09 File Name: B00MMV2I8C | File size: 60.Mb

Various : Art in America 1945-1970: Writings from the Age of Abstract Expressionism, Pop A: (Library of America #259) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Art in America 1945-1970: Writings from the Age of Abstract Expressionism, Pop A: (Library of America #259):

1 of 2 people found the following review helpful. An excellent reference, probably the best selection of its kind ...By Paul StitelmanAn excellent reference, probably the best selection of its kind of writings by artists. It includes many artists normally left out of conventional histories of the period such as the undervalued Alfred Leslie. This will become an indispensable work for anyone seriously interested in American art of this period.0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Through a KaleidescopeBy Lisa, Manila.Fascinating read through the kaleidescope of various eyes : Artists, journos, critics, as well as poets and other fixtures of the American art scene of the period.0 of 1 people found the following review helpful. LovedBy Janice Lincolnwondefull view into the past and the almost tender way the critics in this book talked about art. Loved it

Experience the creative explosion that transformed American art, in the words of the artists, writers, and critics who were there: In the quarter century after the end of World War II, a new generation of painters, sculptors, and photographers transformed the face of American art and shifted the center of the art world from Paris to New York. Signaled by the triumph of abstraction and the ascendancy of painters such as Pollock, Rothko, de Kooning, and Kline, this revolution generated an exuberant and contentious body of writing without parallel in our cultural history. In the words of editor Jed Perl, "there has never been a period when the visual arts have been written about with more mongrel energy"; with more unexpected mixtures of reportage, rhapsody, analysis, advocacy, editorializing, and philosophy. Perl has gathered the best of this writing together for the first time, interwoven with fascinating headnotes that establish the historical background, the outsized personalities of the artists and critics, and the nature of the aesthetic battles that defined the era. Here are statements by the most significant artists, and major critical essays by Clement Greenberg, Susan Sontag, Hilton Kramer, and other influential figures. Here too is an electrifying array of responses by poets and novelists, reflecting the free interplay between different art forms: John Ashbery on Andy Warhol, James Agee on Helen Levitt, James Baldwin on Beauford Delaney, Truman Capote on Richard Avedon, Tennessee Williams on Hans Hofmann, Jack Kerouac on Robert Frank. The atmosphere of the time comes to vivid life in memoirs, diaries, and journalism by Peggy Guggenheim, Dwight Macdonald, Calvin Tomkins, and others. Lavishly illustrated with scores of black-and-white images and a 32-page color insert, this is a book that every art lover will treasure.

"It's a plump, unbuttoned and convivial book, streaked like bacon with gossip and cogitation. . . . [Mr. Perl] is interested in the era's tumult, its howls and murmurs, its wolf whistles and rebel yells. He has raided memoirs, magazines and interviews for material; he's also rummaged through forgotten pamphlets and yellowed correspondence. This is a party that spills out onto the lawn." — Dwight Garner, The New York Times "Every student ought to have a copy in the studio or carrel. . . . For readers generally concerned about art, Art in America is likely to remain essential for quite a while." — Wall Street Journal "A powerhouse time capsule of a singular era. Jed Perl's masterful compilation of interviews, diaries, and essays from the post-war legends of word (Capote, Sontag, Kerouac) and image (Warhol, Avedon, Frank) reads like the dinner party of a lifetime." — BN "In this fascinating anthology Jed Perl has given narrative shape and structure to a wide range of voices: poets, artists themselves, and various other articulate observers of the amazing metamorphoses of postwar American art. What emerges is surely one of the defining records of our artistic age." — John Ashbery "Jed Perl has compiled an invigorating panorama of art writing from a crucial quarter century, adding vital context with his incisive commentaries. As today's art writers suffer diminishing visibility, the pleasures to be had exploring this collection comes as a salutary shock. An unexpectedly compulsive read." — Elizabeth C. Baker, editor-at-large, Art in America magazine "Wondrous. . . . A singular book." — Jeff Simon, The Buffalo News "Perl is a fiercely fluent word-spinner, with a staggering knowledge of American artists and their critics." — John Updike About the Author JED PERL is the art critic for The New Republic. A former contributing editor at Vogue, he has written on contemporary art for a variety of publications, including The New York Times Book and Elle, and is the author of New Art City: Manhattan at Mid-Century (2005), Eyewitness: Reports from an Art World in Crisis (2000), Gallery Going: Four Seasons in the Art World (1991), and Paris Without End: On French Art Since World War I (1988). He teaches art history at the New School.